

Advanced Interview and Interrogation

Proven Techniques for Effective Law Enforcement Interviews

This Advanced Interview and Interrogation Course is designed for law enforcement officers who have previously completed a Basic Interview and Interrogation course. It has been thoroughly researched and developed by our research and development team of experienced subject matter expert instructors to ensure the material reflects current, relevant, and legally sound practices. This course provides students with an advanced training regimen focused on effectively interviewing and interrogating highly resistant and challenging suspects, while refining critical thinking, communication, and behavioral analysis skills. Instruction is reinforced through practical role play interviews and interrogations conducted by the students, allowing for immediate application of concepts in realistic scenarios. Additionally, our instructors remain available indefinitely after course completion to consult with students and provide continued support, expertise, and guidance as they apply these techniques in the field.

This course will cover the following topics:

- Review key vocabulary, techniques, and processes from the Basic Interview and Interrogation course
- Apply neuro linguistic and eye assessment techniques to identify communication patterns
- Recognize eidetic and creative memory indicators
- Understand the background and practical law enforcement application
- of neuro linguistic and eye assessment
- Elicit information from resistant or difficult suspects

About the Instructor

Robert Warfel is a results-oriented and transformational Law Enforcement Executive with a 28-year career spanning public safety, federal law enforcement, and higher education operations and investigations. Throughout his distinguished FBI career, Warfel utilized interview and interrogation strategies, detecting deceptive behavior, and leading complex investigations in public corruption, counterterrorism, counterintelligence, and crisis management. He served in key leadership roles in Chicago, Cincinnati, and Quantico, and trained law enforcement leaders from around the world as an FBI Academy adjunct instructor. Warfel also conducted extensive training in communication and behavioral analysis, equipping officers to gather intelligence and assess credibility in high-stakes situations. As Director of Public Safety at Xavier University, he practiced management strategies, fostered community partnerships, and led critical crisis response initiatives to spearhead emergency preparedness initiatives, and modernized security and investigative practices. He is a certified police instructor, a licensed attorney, and holds a J.D. from Ohio Northern University, as currently serves on his local public-school board and the Risk Management Board for Scouting America's greater Cincinnati council. Warfel has delivered over 150 professional presentations and continues to train officers nationwide.
